

Coro Strandberg is the Principal of Strandberg Consulting which provides sustainability and corporate social responsibility consulting services to firms and helps organizations turn sustainability challenges into market opportunities. She specializes in using market levers such as socially responsible investment, financial vehicles, supply chain management and corporate governance to catalyze sustainable growth and development. Known for her exceptional networking skills, Coro connects people and ideas to create solutions for a sustainable world. Her clients have included retail, transportation and finance firms, environmental organizations, governments and the 2010 Olympics.

Coro has worked in the sustainability field for over twenty years. She was a Director of Vancity Credit Union for 12 years where as Chair of the Board she helped position the credit union as an international leader in corporate social responsibility. Coro founded the Vancity Community Foundation and co-founded the Victoria Values-Based Business Network. She was also instrumental in creating the Sustainability Purchasing Network, which provides training and advisory services to organizations seeking to integrate environmental, social and ethical perspectives into their buying decisions. Coro is an active public speaker and an associate with Canadian Business for Social Responsibility. In 2009 Coro was appointed to the UBC President's Advisory Council - Sustainability External Advisory Board.
